County Freezes Coast

The Monterey County Planning Commission yesterday afternoon did all in its power at present to "hold" the scenic coast land along Highway No. 1 from Malpaso Creek south of Carmel Highlands to the San Luis Obispo County line.

The planners recommended that the county supervisors adopt an interim ordinance from Malpaso Creek to the county line covering 2500 feet on the east side of the highway, to the ocean on the west side, placing all unclassified land in single family dwelling use only and one acre minimum building sites.

Since this does not affect the 500 feet on each side of the highway which is now classified for 6000 square feet building sites, and in some areas is under commercial classification, the planners set a hearing for December 29 to consider reclassifying it as a T-zone (transitional) with the thought that this strip would also be limited to residential use and one acre minimum building sites.

They set March 8, 1960, 1:30 o'clock for a public hearing on the Eight Mile Plan, the property owners' plan for intensive residential and commercial development of the eight miles south of Malpaso Creek. The property owners of the area have provided the plan, drawn up by their professional planner, James Campbell, who was present yesterday afternoon to represent the property owners' interests.

A number of individuals were present to oppose the adoption of the Eight Mile Plan, urging that the entire coastal area from Malpaso Creek to the county line should be planned and zoned as a unit. Senator Fred Farr was among those urging this approach, which was also recommended in a resolution from the Carmel Highlands Association.

Setting the March hearing on the Eight Mile Plan does not indicate that the planners approve or intend to approve the plan, according to Robert Simmon, county zoning commissioner, but only that they wish to give all interested citizens an opportunity to present their views on the matter.

County Planners Director Ed DeMars reported progress in the National Parkways proposal for Highway No. 1. He and Road Commissioner Bruce McClain met last week with the San Luis Obispo County Board of Supervisors and they agreed with enthusiasm to join Monterey County in a feasibility survey. The proposed National Parkway would extend from San Francisco to Santa Cruz; Carmel to San Simeon. The last twenty miles north of San Simeon are in San Luis Obispo County. The northern counties already have their study underway.

DeMars and McClain will meet with National Park Service representatives Tuesday in Salinas for more information on the requirements of such a study.

"Schools Must Lead In Stimulating Community Participation In Music"

By RAYLYN PENNEY

Monterey Peninsula College has this fall started offering a partial solution to a community-wide music problem.

The problem: a serious dearth of performing musicians, particularly string musicians, particularly young string musicians.

The partial solution: a night class in strings open free to all adult and young players, which also serves as a string rehearsal for the Monterey County Symphony, but is not limited to symphony members.

Teaching the new class is a youthful music instructor who happens to be in a liaison position between the two institutions. He is John Erickson, instructor in the MPC music department, who is also violinist with the symphony and was concertmaster at the first symphony performance.

Discussing the situation at our request, Erickson countered with a spate of questions of his own. Why is there no large, solid group of oncoming youngsters seriously studying strings these days? Is it because there is no popular violin-playing "hero" the kids would like to imitate? Are parents more inclined to interest children in the easier arts, the ones with quick, easy results, the ones where the preparation is less demanding?

Playing the violin isn't exactly a social activity. A violinist is in demand for neither football games nor dance bands.

"In the entire enrollment at college this year, only one violinist appeared for string instruction," Erickson says. This is in the 17 to 21 age group.

John Erickson, who first came to the MPC faculty two years ago, started a string program there last year. This year's night class is

Four Councilmen Cool On Elective Mayor For City

In Monterey city elections, the people vote on candidates for mayor as well as for city council. In Carmel, the voters have a chance to decide only on councilmen. The new council, when it organizes after election, selects its own mayor from among its members.

Until recently, only charter cities could have elective mayor, but new legislation now makes it possible for general law cities, such as Carmel. But first, the proposal would have to be submitted to the voters. If it were on the municipal ballot this spring, and passed, still candidates could not run for mayor until 1962.

The matter was on the agenda for the November 3 meeting of the city council, but was put over because of the load of more pressing business to be disposed of. As it was, the council didn't adjourn until 12:15.

It will be up for discussion at the next regular meeting.

We have questioned the five councilmen individually. Only one could see much merit in an elective mayor for Carmel.

Gunnar Norberg, who put the matter on the agenda for discussion, told us:

"Various people at various times have squawked because the councilmen have named somebody who shouldn't be mayor. If the people do it (elect the mayor) they're stuck with it. They can't say to the council, "You worms; you did it."

Then, "I believe the more democracy the better, and in Carmel more people want to decide more things for themselves than anywhere else."

But he doesn't think it is a burning issue, and he doesn't think he's

Laidlaw Williams Cited For Work In Nature Conservancy

Laidlaw Williams, Carmel Highlands ornithologist, received recognition for many years of nature conservancy work last week through a citation from the California Conservation Council.

He was one of 12 persons in the state to be so honored.

The citation reads: "For long, continued, generous and effective service to the people of California in the field of conservation education and in appreciation of far-seeing leadership in the effort to promote cooperation in, and understanding of, conservation practices which has demonstrated your great love of state and country; respect for the laws of nature; understanding of the lessons of history; and regard for the welfare of the people." The document is signed by Albert Lepawsky, president of the California Conservation Council, and Pearl Chase, executive vice president. Headquarters of the council is in Santa Barbara.

Mr. Williams is chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Chapter of Nature Conservancy. This group has undertaken the preservation of 387.2 acres in Garrapata Canyon, nine miles down the coast. The stream, stand of redwoods and chaparral-covered hillsides will be kept in their natural state. There is a diversity of plants, some of them native only to this area. The reservation will be available to students and specialists for research projects that do not involve serious disturbance of the plant life.

The property is being purchased from the Carmel Development Company with funds donated by interested persons. Already, Mr. Williams reports, a considerable amount of money has been received for this project from persons in this area who wish to see Garrapata Canyon remain in its natural state. More funds are needed to complete the purchase.

The Garrapata nature conservancy project is only one of Mr. Williams' efforts to maintain natural areas in California. He is a member of the Lobos League which was instrumental in acquiring public ownership of beaches in this part of Monterey County. He has worked to establish wildlife refuges in this area and has been an active member of the Audubon Society. He is a director of National Nature Conservancy and organized the local chapter.

Already Highlands Residents Move To Reseed Wildcat Canyon Slopes Charred By Raging Three-Day Fire

This week a three-day fire in Wildcat Canyon at Carmel Highlands destroyed Peter Pan Lodge, severely damaged the home of Mrs. Rumsey Campbell and charred 264 acres of land including pine forest.

The Carmel Hill Division of Forestry fire station answered a call to the area at 10:07 o'clock Friday morning. Before the fire was extinguished at 8:00 o'clock on Monday morning, 300 volunteer and professional fire fighters were needed to battle the blaze.

At noon on Friday equipment and men were rushing to the area from 14 fire stations as far away as Morgan Hill and King City. Eight bulldozers dug continuously into precipitous hillsides creating fire breaks. Planes droned over "hot spots." A water main broke. Anxious Highlands residents prepared to evacuate their homes. One man, Peter Anthony Tarr, died of a heart attack.

Billowing smoke and bright red flames outlined the ridges. The sun hung above the inferno like a dull crimson ball. Pine trees flared like torches, while flames devoured hillside chaparral. Quiet clusters of onlookers viewed the holocaust from Wildcat Canyon

PADRES OPEN HOOP SEASON AT GUSTINE TOURNAMENT

Coach Dan Yurkovich's Carmel High basketball squad opens the season in tournament play at Gustine and closes the season with the Carmel Tournament and may see further tournament action at Stanford University. The Padre hoopsters are defending champions at Gustine and are also the CCAL B-division's defending champions. With Hollister and Gilroy playing in the A-division of the CCAL, the Padres are prohibitive favorites to run away with the B-division race.

Russ Wise, Most Valuable Player in the Gustine Tournament last year and an All-League CCAL choice, will anchor the biggest quintet ever to wear the Red & Gray spangles. In the Wilkin twins, Chris and John, Wise, and Jim Aitken, the Padres have four players who hit the 6-4 mark and they are all talented rebounders. For speed, the Padres have a hard-driving backline trio of Ron Faia, Al Dahlstrand, Toby Edson. Returning lettermen from last year's championship club are Chris Wilkin, John Wilkin, and Russ Wise. Up from the lightweights are Al Dahlstrand, Mike Draper, and Phil O'Shea. Players with junior-varsity experience are Curt Van Arsdale, Jim Aitken, Mike Cook, Pat Boyle, Dave Hanson, Doyle Clayton, Fred Bucher, and Toby Edson. Dave Fuller, sharpshooting transfer from Coronado High, has shown good moves in the early-season practice sessions.

Except for tournament play which is reserved for varsity teams only, the Padre hoop schedule is rigged for three teams. The junior-varsity squad plays the opener at 5:30, with the lightweights taking over at 7:00, and the varsity tilt starting at 8:15 o'clock. Dick Lawitzke will again mentor the junior-varsity crew and Hadley Hicks will take over the Padre lightweights.

MPC WHIPS HARTNELL; PLAY AT SANGER SATURDAY NIGHT

A fired-up Monterey Peninsula College football team put together its best performance of the current season last Saturday night to blank arch-rival Hartnell, 30 to 0, and win at least a share of the Coast JC title and earn a trip to Sanger to play in the Sequoia Bowl. If Coach Bill Abbey's Foothill Owls should upset San Jose City College, the Lobos will be undisputed champs while a fin for San Jose would deadlock the Jaguars and Lobos. Coach George Porter takes his high-scoring grid machine to Sanger this Saturday night for an 8 o'clock game in the Sequoia Bowl.

Hartnell's vaunted defense was no match for the hard-hitting Lobos who powered to scores in every quarter. Ben Enea got the first MPC score on a 51-yard pass from LeRoy Guiterrez; Ed Estaban, a powerful runner during the entire game, picked up the second score on a two-yard plunge; quarterback Mike Mosolf took a Panther punt and threaded his way 70 yards for the third tally; Dennis Jackson ran a reverse for a 20-yard TD; and quarterback Guiterrez got the fifth tally on a quarterback sneak.

As in last year's game when Hartnell routed the Lobos in a walkaway, the superior line play of MPC completely riddled the Hartnell defense and throttled Coach Ken Blue's split-T offense. Last year the big Hartnell line had given the Lobos the same treatment but the Lobo coaching staff had built a solid wall this season and the battle up front was men against boys.

SEVEN CARMEL GRIDDERS ON ALL-CCAL SQUAD

Coast Counties Athletic League B-division football coaches tapped seven players from the undefeated Padre team for the mythical All-League squad. The Padres landed four places on the offensive team and three spots on the defensive squad. Co-captains Ron Faia and Harrison Hilbert were unanimous choices for their positions, Faia getting one of the offensive halfback spots and Hilbert selected for a defensive guard position. Toby Edson garnered one of the offensive end positions, Tim Mitchell a tackle spot, and Doug McClurg an offensive guard position. Brian LeNeve was rated the top defensive end in the league and Fred Bucher was a prime favorite for one of the linebacker spots. Runner-up Hollister placed six players on the All-League squad, with third-place Gilroy getting three spots and fourth place Pacific Grove three.

The complete offense squad lined up with Edson and Lloyd Mefferd (Hollister, ends; Mitchell and Ray Lerma (Hollister), tackles; McClurg and Rodney Clark (Pacific Grove), guards; Paul Latzke (Gilroy) center; Mike Logan (Pacific Grove), quarterback; Mike Elder (Gilroy), fullback; Faia and Ted Schmidt (Hollister), halfbacks. The defensive unit had LeNeve and Gil Henderson (King City), ends; Ruben Cruz (Hollister) and Bill Harrison (Gilroy), tackles; Hilbert and John Cueba (Hollister), guards; Bucher, Bill Houston (King City, and Jim Johnson (Gonzales), linebackers; Bob Corcell (Hollister) and Bob Bommarito (Pacific Grove), halfbacks.

City Councilmen Cool On Elective Mayor For Carmel

about to make a crusade of it. If it is to be on the ballot, the council will have to decide before February whether or not they want to put it there, he pointed out.

"I don't think it matters too much one way or another, but I'd like to keep the Carmel tradition," said Councilman Allen Knight, who has served as mayor of Carmel. "We'd probably have trouble to get good people to run for that office, and then we'd eliminate a good councilman if he did run. Its only advantage is that it gives the people a chance to have a say in naming the head man. It's for big cities where a man runs for mayor to lead a crusade, where he's elected on a vital issue. We don't have need of that in a small town."

Councilman (Street Commissioner) James Buffington: "I can see a lot of bumps. There could be three good men running for mayor. Only one could be elected, and two of them would be lost to the council. It's hard enough to get good material as it is."

Mayor John Chitwood: "It's a problematic thing. I don't think Carmel needs it. There are so few people available for candidates here for council. It might be a good thing in communities where individual leadership is needed. A mayor elected on his own right is a stronger leader; he's not at the whim of the people who appointed him and can throw him out of office."

Councilman Everett May: "I believe a board should select its own chairman. You have more harmonious operation, and this arrangement makes running for council more attractive.

"You lose talent, and talent is hard to get, when you have an elective mayor. The defeated one is lost to the council."

He emphasized that the problem in Carmel is to get good material to run for council.

"There's lots of talent in Carmel but it's very difficult to get it to run for elective office. It's too bad to waste some one running separately in a mayoralty contest.

"In a large city, where the mayor has special powers, there's probably reason for elective mayor, but in Carmel, the mayor is simply another councilman.

"In England McMillan doesn't run for Prime Minister. Sometimes I think we're election happy in this country." —W.C.

Wilderness Of The West

A Monthly Column
by C. Edward Graves
9. Salute to the Del Monte Properties Company

Following are two pages from my October diary. The contrast between them certainly constitutes a salute to the Del Monte Properties Company.

Oct. 14, 1959. Drove into the Laguna Ranch on the Point Reyes Peninsula to photograph its ocean front. Although the entrance gate was marked "Private Ranch," there were no Keep Out signs, and I had been advised by other photographers that access was possible. This was a typical dairy ranch about five miles from the nearest main highway. Its particular interest lay in the fact that real estate operators had recently opened a subdivision along the shoreline here. This was the first invasion of this kind on the Point Reyes Peninsula and it constituted a problem for the proposed Point Reyes National Seashore, a project of the National Park Service.

I saw no one at the ranch headquarters and went about my photography undisturbed. Just as I finished, a man driving a tractor in a near-by field saw me, yelled and waved his arms, indicating that he wanted me to leave. Perhaps the presence of several carloads of men at the near-by subdivision, probably laying out plots, had something to do with it. No doubt the ranch owner didn't want publicity. No doubt no one was welcome there, unless he wanted to buy a lot.

October 28, 1959. Drove to Pescadero Point on the 17-Mile Drive to spend a few leisure hours. Here just below the Witch Tree is one of the most beautiful spots on the California coast. A jumble of picturesque rocks catches the ocean swells, shattering them into boiling white spray and foam. Beyond the rocks a gently sloping pasture extends for a quarter of a mile to the entrance to Stillwater Cove. Lying between a row of cypress trees on the edge of the highway and a wide rocky shoreline, this pasture is a delightful spot from which to look across Carmel Bay to Point Lobos, watching the oncoming breakers as they crash on Pescadero Point.

Here I spent three or four hours, undisturbed by No Trespass signs. Only a handful of other people wandered far enough from their parked cars to discover this scenic paradise. It was pretty close to real wilderness, although only a few hundred yards from the heavily travelled 17-Mile Drive.

This section of the coast line has been preserved permanently by the Del Monte Properties Company for the use of property owners in the Del Monte Forest by the simple device of deeding it to the collective owners in perpetuity. Every time I visit the spot, I mentally thank the company for this generous action. What a contrast with the action of the irate rancher on the Point Reyes Peninsula!

In 1915 my wife and I had an all-day walk from Carmel to Cypress Point and back. As I remember it, we didn't see a single house along the shoreline. It was too much to expect that this would remain permanently a wilderness section of shoreline, but we are fortunate in having now, thanks to the public-spirited action of the Del Monte Properties Company, a number of open spaces on which there will never be any building. If we can only do as well on the remaining sections of the shoreline, we should be very happy.

Editor's Note: We agree with Mr. Graves that Del Monte Properties has done well in preserving the scenic values of the 17-Mile Drive, but the situation is not parallel with eight miles down coast south of Malpaso Creek. Del Monte Properties developed its own 17-Mile Drive; the down coast area was opened up by the state highway department. Del Monte Properties was developed at a time when there was so much unspoiled scenery in California, nobody was concerned with preserving it, except for the stunning examples in the Sierra that became National Parks. The coast from Carmel south is so rugged and seemingly uninviting for settlement that it was thought it would never be developed. As late as a year ago I was told by a county planning commissioner, when I urged more rigid zoning, that down coast could not be developed because there wasn't enough water.

James Doud is prepared to spend $50,000 to build a dam and water system to provide for his intensive residental and commercial development in the eight-mile plan before the planning commission now. Mr. Charles Sawyer already has provided a water system for his subdivision.

I do not think that conservationists should settle for anything less than no development on the coast side of Highway 1 from Malpaso Creek to the county line. Preserving that coast has become a matter of national interest. There is a movement to establish the coast highway from San Francisco to Hearst Castle as a National Parkway. Besides the support of the Counties of San Francisco, Santa Clara and Santa Cruz, in this, we have friends in the State Legislature.

We must not compromise for pretty vistas, caught between mansions, down coast when there is a possibility of keeping the entire view. —W. C.

Schools Should Lead In Stimulating Community Music

composed of adults, except for the lone student violinist.

He says that if there is sufficient community interest, he will next year launch a second night class with group instruction for beginners, of any age.

In addition to offering instruction, he says, the class is expected to generate enough interest in string playing to encourage beginners to take more private lessons.

The teacher-symphony player says only last year he started playing seriously again after a number of years of studying and teaching music. A Stanford University graduate in music, he returned there for graduate work after teaching in Crescent City.

Here and elsewhere he has taught vocal music, music for elementary schools, vocal ensembles, instrumental ensembles, chorus and harmony. A native of California, he has played professionally in the past with well known symphonic groups and conductors, including Eugene Ormandy and others.

He says he has done some composing but he didn't like what he turned out.

He says his taste in music is, in general, contemporary, although if he were choosing a favorite among composers it would have to be Mozart, "the composer without flaw."

Other Erickson comments on things musical are not only thoughtful; some even sound like the opening gun in what could be a lengthy discussion.

"The separation between musician and audience is great or small in direct proportion to the amount of music with which both are familiar.

"Young people who have been exposed to very little music will usually prefer contemporary composers over the old masters after hearing both. They intuitively recognize the contemporary as expressive of their own times.

"As in religion, where the central idea of God sometimes becomes lost in sectarianism, so it is in music; the music, which should be the first thing, becomes subordinated to the interplay of personalities, which should be the very last thing."

Returning to the subject of the low ratio of string players to total local population, he said he wants to make it clear that "it's no one's fault, really. We are all equally responsible. The schools must take the initiative in stimulating community participation."

Approaching still another side of the topic, he pointed out that a genuine reawakening of enthusiasm for string playing has already taken place here among adults, some of whom are beginners on their instruments. He says they deserve encouragement and commendation.

Still, nothing can take the place of a new generation of players starting very young, and working very hard.

November 25, 1959

Editor, Pine Cone:

Dear Editor:

As you have done so often in the past, I hope you will bring to the attention of your many readers the story of "The Scandal at Tule Lake" as reported by the San Francisco Chronicle's Woodsman. As is so often the case, "Time is of the essence" in writing to our congressmen and to the Department of the Interior for immediate action in stopping this scandalous action of the Tule Lake Irrigation District.

Tule Lake is the largest waterfowl refuge in the nation and of the utmost, importance on the Pacific Flyway of our water birds. According to reports the Tule Lake Irrigation District took over the lake and marshlands in 1957, agreeing to abide in strict accordance with all the necessary practices of conservation as laid down by the Fish and Wildlife Service. Instead, they have openly flouted the authority and "so impaired water levels as to directly impair reduction of duck population and nesting conditions." The figures speak for themselves. In 1956, the last year the refuge was under management of the Fish and Wildlife Service, 34,000 ducks and geese were hatched in this area. This year, under Tule Lake Irrigation District control, it fell to 11,800.

There is talk of their contemplating reclamation of this land and turning it into farmland!

All conservationists and sportsmen should be aroused by this action. As we are all aware, our wildlife is constantly being threatened by the explosive burst of our population and absorption of woodlands, marshes and other areas where formerly our wildlife could find refuge. Now, even land which has been set aside as a sanctuary seems to not be safe from the avarice and greed of some men.

Please see if you cannot find space for the call to action before it is too late. Every letter helps.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Virginia Rogers Bacher

36 Eucalyptus To Be Destroyed By Highway Dept.

The State Division of Highways in Sacramento last week opened bids for trimming roadside trees and the removal of 36 eucalyptus along a 3.3 mile portion of U. S. Highway 101, El Camino Real, north of King City in Monterey County.

Four bids were submitted for the work and Walts Tree Service Inc., 4895 Broadway, De Pew, N. Y. had the low bid of $8,910.00. Actual trimming work is expected to start about the middle of December, depending upon when the contract is awarded to the qualified low bidder.

The project consists of removing deadwood and hazardous overhanging limbs, balancing, topping (reducing in height), and shaping approximately 260 eucalyptus trees beside El Camino Real between 5.8 and 8.1 miles north of King City.

In addition, about 36 other eucalyptus trees within the same area will be cut down flush with the adjacent ground level and their stumps treated with a brush-killer material to prevent their regrowth.

Public traffic will be allowed to pass through the work area with as little inconvenience and delay as possible. Motorists should, however, expect to encounter intermittent delays up to 15 minutes long or reduction of the expressway traveled-ways from 2 lanes to one lane while trees are being felled or topped or when overhanging limbs are being removed.

PLAN EUROPEAN TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Wendell C. Redding sail on December 9 from New York to Le Havre where they will meet their daughter, Diane, then drive through France to Spain.

During the Reddings' absence their home will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. George Sample.

SCHOOL BOARD WORKS OVER EMPLOYMENT RULES

Carmel school board members adopted a salary schedule for classified employees Monday night, and worked over the rules for those employees to bring them into line with new legislation.

They took no action on a proposal of a travel agency to organize summer European tours with study in Switzerland for high school juniors and seniors at a cost "we hope to keep down to" $1500.

Majority Of The Residents Show Community Chest Is Accepted As The Peninsula's Basic Charity

BY BRAYTON WITHERELL

That the Community-Chest-Way of giving has been accepted by the majority of the residents of the Monterey Peninsula, that it is entitled to be considered as the Peninsula's Basic Charity because it supports 22 Here-at-Home-Services, is very evident as the Chest swings into the seventh week of its 1960 Fund Drive.

To date more than 15,000 donors have given $111,000 (60%) of the huge and necessary $188,137 budget goal. This amount represents an increase of 15% collected over the corresponding period last year.

As always, Carmel, this year under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. William Forestelle and Lars Svensgaard, is responding generously and is now within 28% of its total goal.

At this time, when so much is at stake for the many thousand Peninsulans who need the services of the 22 humane and character-building,here-at-home Chest Agencies, it is perhaps right and proper to consider how important these agencies are to all who live in this Peninsula and why your Chest came into being.

When the United - Community - Chest - Way of giving was adopted it was with the understanding that individual donations should be increased in proportion to the addition of those new agencies which had formerly conducted separate campaigns, thus avoiding uneconomic and vexatious fund raising campaigns and assuring that the money be expended for the purposes designated and not wasted in many expensive fund drives.

Realizing this, many have given with careful thought and others with sacrifice, realizing that the United-Community - Chest-Way is the Common-Sense-Way to support the 22 Here-at-Home-Services so sorely needed. They may give to some other worthy drives which crop up, but the Community Chest is their Basic Charity.

There are, of course, some who are unable to increase their donations or even give anything, because of personal committments which perforce must come first. This is of course understandable.

Some few others prefer to give to their own personal charities and make only "token" donations or make no gift to your Chest. This too is understandable.

There is an even smaller number who do not believe in charity in any form and that is their God-given right in this country of ours.

Unfortunately there is another too-large group which perhaps because of thoughtlessness accepts the many and diversified benefits of the services provided by donations to the Chest and in return give only "token" gifts or no donation at all. They do not carry their "fair share" of the Charity load and are all too willing to shift their share of the burden on to the shoulders of their more generous neighbors.

Some of this last group have not increased their Chest donation for many years, though financially able, and have felt imposed upon if asked to so do, little realizing that if the 22 humane and character building organizations supported by Chest donations are handicapped to any extent, because of lack of funds, a serious situation would develop here on the Peninsula.

Unless those who can so afford and who have not increased their donations during the past three years now do so, we will be faced with many supplementary, aggravating and uneconomic fund drives, for the dollar is not elastic. Those who have never given are urged to now assume their "fair share."

If we meet the 1960 goal of $188,137.00, it is our considered opinion that, barring an emergency of considerable importance, it will not be necessary to increase the Chest goal for 1961.

Your Chest is, and rightfully so, the basic charity regardless of other worthy causes, for it supports not one, but 22 wonderful, humane and character building, here-at-home agencies, all serving you and your neighbors here on the Peninsula.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Reprinted in the New York Times Book Review of a recent date was an article originally published in the Saturday Review entitled Can Johnny's Parents Read? The statistics listed therein included the ones which show that only 13% of Americans borrow books from a public library. Of the books borrowed from the library only 5% are good reading, 7% are fair quality, and 88% are low quality. This is shocking, but this librarian does not believe that these figures are valid for Carmel. This gives us the chance to be comfortably shocked at the deplorable conditions in the rest of the country. Equally shocking are the statistics which state that 42% of the homes in America have no bookshelves at all, and only 12% of houses being constructed today have built-in bookshelves. Now there is a dreadful condition! Realizing that harping on this subject loses force by being too often repeated, let's face the fact that children raised among books which are permanently a part of their environment are most likely to get and keep lifelong the pleasant habit of reading. And people who have the reading habit possess inner resources which must ever enrich their lives.

Carol Brink has written several children's books, and they are good ones. Comes now a novel entitled Strangers in the Forest. The scene is the Idaho Panhandle at the turn of this century. The people are modern pioneers, colorful and strong.

There are three interesting biographies this week. One is the story of the life of Charles Lindbergh by Kenneth Davis. The title is The Hero. Mr. Davis tells of the adulation Lindbergh received in his youth, and the later vilification. This is a big book, well written, revealing the character of the Lindberghs, as well as their lives. Do not plan to read it over a weekend, this one will take some time.

Shorter and easier is the autobiography of Kathleen Norris which she has called Family Gathering. It is the intimate family story of an old California family. It will bring you smiles, and tears, and a sweet nostalgia.

The third book is Gusty's Child by Alice Tisdale Hobart. The jacket blurb tells us that this book has been years in the living and years in the writing. Much of Mrs. Hobart's life was spent in China, and the times there make exciting reading. This, too, is a story intimately told.

In view of our present relations with Cuba, a new book by Hart Phillips is timely and interesting. The title is Cuba, Island of Paradox. The author was for some years correspondent in Cuba for the New York Times and has lived on the island since the 20's. Toward the end of the book she says, "Rising anti-American sentiment in Latin America is the harvest being reaped from years of vacillating, hesitant and cowardly policy by the United States government. The objective of the American government should be to weld the Western Hemisphere into a solid block through common interests . . ."

The curb-side book return is in full operation.. It was so within about five minutes after the city crew completed installation! Now we wonder what library patrons ever did before we had this convenience.

TIME FOR THANKS

Beside the hearthfire's warm tranquillity,
In contemplation of the magnitude
Of harvests garnered from a golden year,
Our hearts become deep wells of gratitude.

—ETHEL PEAK.

HARVEST MOON

Full and bright—the moon tonight;
While timidly small creatures of the wood
Dance in and out of dappled shade.
Fearful, yet joyous at the accolade
Of generous harvesting;
But, quite aware in all the wisdoms
Of the ageless past
That winter comes.

—GRACE R. BALLARD.

FRUITING CYCLE

The pruned vine rattles dry dull knuckles down a silhouette of arbor, one last etiquette confirming harvest-crop goodbye.
Now storms can reach to pry among laced branches boldly, yet not loosen or untie lean wires anchoring. Growth may forget identity, and frost her lullaby;
the vine sleeps unaware through winter wet.
But spring remembers harvest, she will let sap stir, then spiral high till emeralds one morning set sweet clusters globing life, that fructify to purple under-periwinkle sky.

—HELEN FAULKNER.

THANKSGIVING

Where long the leaves of summer lay
The rain has cleansed the dust away

And fresh and new the living green
Ungraven by the grey is seen.

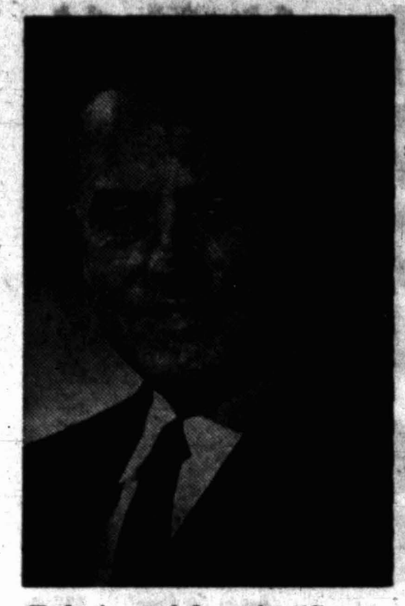
Even among the withered grass
The sunward blades of victory pass.

How soon the changes of the year
Through moving panes of time appear!

Somewhere the winter's gravest hour
Treasures the full-blown summer flower.

Somewhere the slant of autumn's wing
Touches the skywardness of Spring.

—DORA HAGEMEYER.



Today's need for scientific prayer will be the topic of a free public lecture on Christian Science to be delivered by Herbert E. Rieke of Indianapolis, Indiana, in Carmel on December 7, at 8:00 o'clock p. m. The lecture will be broadcast over station KIDD 630 on your dial.

Mr. Rieke, a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will speak in The Church Edifice, Monte Verde and Sixth Avenue under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel. His subject will be The Power of Prayer Revealed through Christian Science.

A Christian Science teacher and practitioner, Mr. Rieke is a graduate of Northwestern University. He entered the public practice of Christian Science healing in 1928. An Army Air Corps Chaplain during World War II, he served for three and a half years in India, North Africa, and Italy, receiving a Bronze Star for distinguished service. He became an authorized teacher of Christian Science in 1946. He is a native of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Foreign Student Parties

On Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bruggeman and Mr. and Mrs. S. Fletcher Dutton entertained at a supper party for ten international students at Monterey Peninsula College. Following the party at the Bruggemans' home, the students attended the play at the Circle Theatre. Each Sunday evening ten MPC foreign students are guests of the Circle management.

Next Sunday afternoon all international students at MPC are invited to luncheon followed by music at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Klene of Carmel Valley. Members of the Monterey Peninsula Citizens Committee for International Students will assist Mr. and Mrs. Klene with the party.

All International students on the Peninsula are being entertained by local families for Thanksgiving dinner this evening.

Five students are still seeking homes with families in this area. Two are from Iraq, two from Iran and one from Turkey. Anyone wishing to offer a foreign student living accommodations may telephone Miss Rosabelle Hamann, Jr. FRontier 5-9821.

Renee Dances And Hears Opera

Renee Wurzmann, who has been in New York since the end of August, is enrolled in classes under Margaret Craske at the Metropolitan Opera Ballet School. She has also been studying at the Ballet Repertory School and is now a member of the Ballet Repertory Company and will be a soloist in this group's February productions.

Renee is a super with Metropolitan Opera Company, too, and had the part of a nun in Cavalleria Rusticana. She writes to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Wurzmann, that she has the privilege of listening to Met performances in the wings and is "drinking in opera."

Besides these activities, Renee is taking a literature course at Columbia University. She expects to be in the East for at least a year.

Children's House Silver Tea

Children's House, the new Carmel Valley home for retarded children, will be open for inspection by interested persons at a silver tea on December 13 from 1:00 to 5:00 o'clock. Mrs. Byington Ford, director of Children's House, will be assisted by the Peninsula Council for Retarded Children, owners of the home, in preparing for the open house party. Mrs. Frank Porter and Mrs. Arthur Jensen will share hostess duties with Mrs. Ford during the afternoon.

Children's House is situated next to the Carmel Valley Fire Department in the Village. Six children will become residents of the home next week. They are taken to school in Pacific Grove each day. Their homes are in various parts of Monterey County. Parents pay for the children's care according to their financial ability. Donations at the silver tea will help with the cost of maintaining Children's House.

Organ Society Party Dec. 19

The Monterey Peninsula Hammond Chord Organ Society will have a Christmas party on December 19.

Their November meeting was held at the Graham Music Company. Musical guessing games were presented by Mrs. Al Gonsalves, Mrs. M. A. Bengston, Neil Armstrong and Leslie Barnett. Refreshment hostesses were Mrs. Ed Graham, Mrs. R. D. Winingar, Mrs. H. C. Painter and Miss Helen Harmon.

Peter Tarr

Peter Anthony Tarr, a resident of the Wildcat Canyon area in Carmel Highlands, died on Friday of a heart attack. After warning neighbors that a fire in the canyon threatened their homes, he was endeavoring to photograph the blaze which destroyed Peter Pan Lodge and an adjacent home when he collapsed. Volunteer members of the Carmel Fire Department took him to the Peninsula Community Hospital in the Red Cross ambulance but he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Mr. Tarr was born in St. Petersburg, Russia, on December 2, 1894. He came to the United States in 1926 and to the Monterey Peninsula from Oakland 20 years later. He was an electrician until some years ago when he decided to devote the major part of his time to photography.

Survivors are his wife, Norma, of Carmel Highlands, and five sisters living in Russia.

The Right Reverend Winfred H. Ziegler, retired Bishop of Wyoming and neighbor of Mr. Tarr, officiated at funeral services on Monday afternoon in All Saints' Episcopal Church. Burial followed in Cemeterio El Encinal, Monterey.

Those wishing to honor the memory of Mr. Tarr are asked to do so in the form of donations to the Monterey County Heart Association, Box 1329, Monterey.

Wildcat Canyon Slopes Charred By Raging Three-Day Fire

Bridge, including Miss Janet Folsom and Miss Ruth Downard, owners of Peter Pan Lodge, which was a fiery mass. Homes stood in sharp relief against the flames. Highway 1 was closed to all but necessary traffic. Guards stood at all roads leading to the fire area.

Before 2:00 o'clock the fire spread up the canyon away from the inhabited area to the south of the canyon. It threatened to spill over the northern rim of Wildcat Canyon threatening another populated area but was retained.

In the late afternoon the danger to Carmel Highlands residents was confined to still burning underbrush and pine trunks on the slopes of the canyon. The three chimneys of Peter Pan Lodge, several stories high, stood starkly above a mass of glowing embers, fire implements and andirons in place.

At dusk professional packers removed undamaged possessions from the Campbell home where water had poured through the burning roof and soaked walls and floors. Mrs. Campbell was in Pasadena. Informed of the fire she worried more about the condition of her neighbors and her precious garden rather than being disturbed about the ruin of her home.

County Supervisor Tom Hudson, member of the Highlands Fire Department, stood below the lodge encouraging weary Carmel Highlands Fire Chief Seizo Kodani. Since morning Mr. Hudson, in the fire department jeep, had been the liason between groups of firefighters, and transported Chief Kodani to strategic fire fighting locations. Homeowners played hoses on their houses. Later telephones rang and residents were informed that a Carmel Highlands Association election meeting at the firehouse that evening was postponed.

All night the fire burned on up the canyon in a fiery glow. Next day smoke still billowed above the hills, and fires smoldered on the canyon sides. The same situation prevailed through Saturday and Sunday, ever diminishing. Monday morning Carmel residents saw a clear horizon and Highlands residents charred hillsides.

In a straight line the fire burned inland a distance of three-quarters of a mile and up the canyon slopes a quarter of a mile.

The cause remains unknown and is being investigated. One resident reported seeing kids in the canyon early on Friday. Carmel Highlands resident Fritz Hartung saw the blaze start while walking with his dog on the north slope of the canyon and turned in the alarm.

Monday evening, the fire out, Highlands residents turned their attention to community affairs. The postponed election meeting was held in the firehouse. William K. Stewart was chosen as president of the Highlands Association this year; Mrs. Edna Parratt, vice president; Mrs. Marion Douglas, secretary-treasurer.

The crowd that overflowed the meeting room gave a prolonged standing ovation to visibly moved Fire Chief Kodani and passed a resolution by acclamation praising his work, that of the 14 units that responded to the alarm and the volunteer firefighters.

Mrs. Virginia Neilson and Laidlaw Williams were appointed as the committee to attend to reseeding and replanting the 264 acre burned area. Funds for the project to be provided cooperatively by Highlands residents and Monterey County. Mrs. Neilson announced the sum of $650 was already pledged for this project by herself, Oakley Hall and Dr. Wesley Wright, all owners of burned land.

Mrs. Laidlaw Williams and Mrs. Russell Williams were placed in charge of the annual Christmas party which Highlands residents give for their volunteer fire department. Francis Heisler moved that this year a more tangible appreciation also be offered the volunteers and Chief Kodani. He pledged $25 towards a special fund for the firemen.

The community Christmas party will be on December 28 in the new Highlands firehouse.

Snow White Ballet Saturday, Sunday At Sunset Auditorium

problem in community-type ballet productions, has been solved by the selection of David Hardie, solo dancer of the San Francisco Ballet and Ballet Russe, who is coming from San Francisco to portray the role of the Prince. The part of the Genie of the Mirror has been assigned to Dale Lefler, known for his fine choreography and dancing roles on the Peninsula. The Woodsman is being portrayed by Jerry Lefler.

The ballet's sets are by Ronnie Cummings, costumes by Eleanor Gamble and lighting by Diane Hardy. Music will include Giselle by Adam; Die Puppenfee by Bayer, and the familiar Ballet Suite by Shostakovich.

CARMEL FOUNDATION NOTES

On Wednesday, December 2, at 3:00 o'clock, Leslie C. Deck will show a film in color with sound, Secret Cargo, a thrilling underwater adventure. This will be followed by a short film, depicting the leisurely life of the people of Tahiti, their dances, customs and crafts, against the colorful background of the island.

Tea will be served.

Music On The Peninsula

By Mary Lindsay-Oliver

In the musical world today there are no other duo performers who can do so perfectly what Yehudi Menuhin and his sister Hephzibah have attained. To hear them last Thursday in San Francisco not only confirmed for me their unique situation but fulfilled what a sold-out great Festival Hall in London prevented last season, in which city both these musicians now make their home. A packed San Francisco Opera House and a rush back stage, that gave the doorkeeper a hard time, mobbed these idols.

The power of these two is their direct inspiration and simplicity, devoid of artificialties of fashion that have crept into all the arts today, and their interpretive insight is coupled with refined and charming personalities that convey a sense of loyal devotion to the creative geniuses whose thought they interpret. Such places them on the pinnacle.

Three Sonatas by Brahms, Bartok and Beethoven for violin and piano comprised the program. The players maintained the equal balance this form demands and achieved together, with strong tone and feeling, startling depth and color that stirred the audience to a frenzy. Music, the highest of the arts, with such performance, can convey its spiritual import and influence for great good. Let us hope one of our local music organizations can sometime bring the Menuhins to Carmel, for "they achieve a degree of unanimity . . . beyond the scope of any pair of celebrities,"—as expressed in the London Times.

Six adult students of Gilbert Boyer were presented in recital at Fellowship Hall of the Wayfarer Church last Saturday evening. Only one of them performed without the music score on the piano. This was Herbert Myers, and in his two Debussy numbers, La Cathedrale Engloutie and Tierces Alternees, he therefore outdistanced the rest in freer performance, and should go far in future developments. True, this rushed age leaves little time for memorizing, but when it can be done, it frees the performer for a more subjective and intuitive interpretation. Nevertheless, the program, consisting of Scarlatti, Mendelssohn, MacDowell, Debussy, Chopin, and Rachmaninoff was one that required considerable technique and achievement. Carole Crumpley completed it with the Chopin Scherzo op. 54, attacked with poise and deliberation. I missed the Scarlatti, with which she opened the program. Katherine Erickson, with the old student "war-horse," Mendelssohn's Rondo Cappriccioso, showed some dramatic sense and enthusiastic strength. Ann de Carlo in the Chopin Nocturne in F sharp major brought forth the melody. She also played the Rachmaninoff Scherzo duet with her teacher. Elizabeth Orr Kanevski essayed the first movement of the MacDowell Sonata Eroica, and Helen Moren, the Debussy Doll's Serenade. It was good to see three of the ladies who are married devoting time to their music. Too many let go of it when that happens! All were a credit to their teacher, Gilbert Boyer.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

How spiritual enlightenment brings protection from evil will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon. Included in the Bible passages to be read is Paul's counsel to the Romans (13:12): "The night is far spent, the day is at hand; let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light."

Correlative citations from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include (571:15): "At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom and the occasion for a victory over evil. Clad in the panoply of Love, human hatred cannot reach you. The cement of a higher humanity will unite all interests in the one divinity."

School Balks At Sharing Recreation Wealth With Center

Representatives of the city, the school board, Community Chest and Carmel Youth Center got nowhere in a meeting Monday afternoon on the subject of a new plan for financing the youth center.

At present the school district contributes only $3500 to the center out of $40,000 raised by the special community center tax of 10 cents which is levied for recreational purposes. Community Chest has promised $10,000 this year.

School board members made it plain that they had no intention of increasing the contribution to the youth center since it is not under the jurisdiction of the school district. Center representatives and city councilmen objected to a change of the present control which is in the hands of an adult board and the youths themselves.

Mayor John Chitwood emphasized the undesirability of creating a special tax district to support the youth center since the citizens are now paying the 10 cents tax to the school district for recreation. Also such a district would place the youth center under political control, he pointed out.

Meeting adjourned with the conclusion that, in the matter of youth center financing, for the present, they'd better "let it ride."

Valley Horsemen To Hold Junior Horse Show Dec. 6

The Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club with the Carmel Valley Horsemen's Association will hold a junior open horse show (ages 18 and under) on December 6 at the Trail and Saddle Club grounds on Garzas Road starting at 10:00 o'clock in the morning.

There will be 14 events with trophies and ribbons to fourth place. Bill Sellers, Trail and Saddle Club member, and Vic Silva of the Horsemen's Association are co-chairmen in charge of the show. All entries must be received before the starting hour. Judges will be Mrs. Gerald Allemand of Pacific Grove and Roy Hackworth of Salinas. Ruth Bishop and Ann Agee will be show secretaries. Refreshments will be available at the canteen.

THIS CAR

SIMCA Elysee

CAN SAVE YOU HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS IN GASOLINE ALONE!

It's the great new SIMCA from Paris! The car that saves you money on every count. SIMCA costs much less than it should, because everything in the book is included as standard equipment. Heater, defroster, automatic choke, electric windshield wipers, and even a 2-level horn.

And SIMCA's engine is up front, for perfect balance, hence greater road stability, and easier control. Test drive the new SIMCA today.
